

ROYAL NAVY WHISTLEBLOWER

Trident "a disaster waiting to happen"

"it's harder to get into some nightclubs than Britain's nuclear weapons facility"

Only "a matter of time before we're infiltrated by a psychopath or a terrorist"

ROYAL NAVY WHISTLEBLOWER

Trident "a disaster waiting to happen"

"it's harder to get into some nightclubs than Britain's nuclear weapons facility"

Only "a matter of time before we're infiltrated by a psychopath or a terrorist"

ROYAL NAVY WHISTLEBLOWER

Trident "a disaster waiting to happen"

"it's harder to get into some nightclubs than Britain's nuclear weapons facility"

Only "a matter of time before we're infiltrated by a psychopath or a terrorist"

ROYAL NAVY WHISTLEBLOWER

Trident "a disaster waiting to happen"

"it's harder to get into some nightclubs than Britain's nuclear weapons facility"

Only "a matter of time before we're infiltrated by a psychopath or a terrorist"

Able Seaman William McNeilly, 25, is today in military custody for blowing the whistle on the safety failings of the UK's nuclear submarines. His claims have been supported by another ex-crew member.

The litany of safety and security failings in the McNeilly report included, among others:

- * ID cards were rarely checked
- * Bags and equipment from contractors and crew not searched and left near nuclear missiles
- * Nuclear missile compartment used as a gym
- * High humidity levels in nuclear reactors – with water dripping onto electrics
- * Unauthorised access to Top Secret information, including navigation information
- * David Cameron and top brass kept in the dark about poor practices and conditions
- * Exam results made up in crucial crew tests
- * Missile launch tests failed
- * High risk of nuclear explosion from malpractice or terrorist infiltration.

Petition for his release - chn.ge/1L1u97F
See full dossier: wikileaks.org/trident-safety/
Get involved: yorkshirecnd.org.uk/join

Able Seaman William McNeilly, 25, is today in military custody for blowing the whistle on the safety failings of the UK's nuclear submarines. His claims have been supported by another ex-crew member.

The litany of safety and security failings in the McNeilly report included, among others:

- * ID cards were rarely checked
- * Bags and equipment from contractors and crew not searched and left near nuclear missiles
- * Nuclear missile compartment used as a gym
- * High humidity levels in nuclear reactors – with water dripping onto electrics
- * Unauthorised access to Top Secret information, including navigation information
- * David Cameron and top brass kept in the dark about poor practices and conditions
- * Exam results made up in crucial crew tests
- * Missile launch tests failed
- * High risk of nuclear explosion from malpractice or terrorist infiltration.

Petition for his release - chn.ge/1L1u97F
See full dossier: wikileaks.org/trident-safety/
Get involved: yorkshirecnd.org.uk/join

Able Seaman William McNeilly, 25, is today in military custody for blowing the whistle on the safety failings of the UK's nuclear submarines. His claims have been supported by another ex-crew member.

The litany of safety and security failings in the McNeilly report included, among others:

- * ID cards were rarely checked
- * Bags and equipment from contractors and crew not searched and left near nuclear missiles
- * Nuclear missile compartment used as a gym
- * High humidity levels in nuclear reactors – with water dripping onto electrics
- * Unauthorised access to Top Secret information, including navigation information
- * David Cameron and top brass kept in the dark about poor practices and conditions
- * Exam results made up in crucial crew tests
- * Missile launch tests failed
- * High risk of nuclear explosion from malpractice or terrorist infiltration.

Petition for his release - chn.ge/1L1u97F
See full dossier: wikileaks.org/trident-safety/
Get involved: yorkshirecnd.org.uk/join

Able Seaman William McNeilly, 25, is today in military custody for blowing the whistle on the safety failings of the UK's nuclear submarines. His claims have been supported by another ex-crew member.

The litany of safety and security failings in the McNeilly report included, among others:

- * ID cards were rarely checked
- * Bags and equipment from contractors and crew not searched and left near nuclear missiles
- * Nuclear missile compartment used as a gym
- * High humidity levels in nuclear reactors – with water dripping onto electrics
- * Unauthorised access to Top Secret information, including navigation information
- * David Cameron and top brass kept in the dark about poor practices and conditions
- * Exam results made up in crucial crew tests
- * Missile launch tests failed
- * High risk of nuclear explosion from malpractice or terrorist infiltration.

Petition for his release - chn.ge/1L1u97F
See full dossier: wikileaks.org/trident-safety/
Get involved: yorkshirecnd.org.uk/join